HOW TO SET

BOUNDARIES

- 1. Identify What You Need
 - 2. Communicate Clearly
 - 3. Stay Consistent
 - 4. Prepare For Pushback

Try this...

MUSTS vs. SHOULDs

Determine what's most important in each domain of your life - spirituality, family, work, health, and community. Write these things down. These are the MUSTs in your life.

Check out or write down your current to-do list. Put a star next to everything that goes on the MUST list.

What if you focus primarily on the MUSTs, not the SHOULDs? Does this inform new boundaries?

And, Try this...

Leverage technology mindfully

Set limits - keep work to your work hours - disable notifications during family time, and avoid email after hours. Set the standard and hold to it.

Try new tools - try or use productivity and scheduling tools, AI, and project management applications.

Detox - Designate specific times or days when you disconnect.

Also, this...

Take advantage of workplace policies

If allowed, use (and offer to your team) flexible schedules, workout time, remote work options, paid time off, and any other benefits.

Don't forget...

Communicate openly

Have honest discussions about your desire to create a better balance and focus on the MUSTS.

Explain your approach and discuss expectations about availability and responsiveness.

Listen to their feedback and work through challenges.
